

To whom it may concern,

I would like to assert that local towns and municipalities should have absolute jurisdiction over their local amenities and housing. My husband and I are originally from the Bronx, and have lived in Weston for 20 years. We do not expect to use the Fairfield beaches for the same rate as Fairfield residents. They are the ones that pay the taxes. No one is banned from the beach. In terms of housing, lack of density is one of the reasons that we left the Bronx for Weston. We worked long and hard to get here. No one is prohibited from doing the same. This is gross government overreach.

Sincerely,
Michele A. Burke
